Information about the rules concerning exemption from customs duty for home contents etc. imported on moving to Norway

Section 5-10 of the Customs Regulations exempts home contents and other possessions imported in connection with moving to Norway from customs duty. The exemption applies correspondingly to value added tax. The exemption from customs duty does not apply to motor vehicles, aircraft, pleasure craft or work equipment. Nor does the exemption apply to food, beverages or tobacco products.

The Customs Regulations section 5-1-11 contains provisions that relate specifically to the use of pleasure craft imported in connection with moving to Norway. Applications for such exemption must be submitted in a separate letter and not on this declaration.

It is a condition for exemption from customs duty pursuant to section 5-1-10 that the goods are imported by and for the use of persons who have been resident abroad for a continuous period of at least one year. The person importing the goods must have owned or possessed and used the objects concerned abroad. The importation must take place within a reasonable period of moving to Norway, and an application for exemption must be submitted no later than at the same time as the removal goods are customs cleared.

You must declare any importation of weapons and ammunition since permission from the police is required for such importation. You must also declare the importation of a television set separately in the declaration. This is because of the television licence and requirements for the control of electrical equipment imported to Norway.

On importation, a list of the goods should accompany the removal goods, stating whether the goods are used or new.

The customs service can consent to the removal goods being controlled in the recipient's home if this is expedient.

The customs declaration for the importation of removal goods shall be submitted to the customs service on customs clearance of the goods.
